| Exhibit(30 Points)            | Your overall exhibit was detailed, organized, and very creative. You clearly introduced the archaeological site and the theories and mysteries surrounding it. Your visuals included a map showing the location of the site and images that helped visitors learn about the site. You followed the guidelines for citing the sources of your text and images. You used correct grammar, punctuation, and spelling, and used complete sentences. Museum visitors will learn a great deal. | Your overall exhibit was accurate and creative. Your grammar, punctuation, and spelling were correct most of the time. You illustrated general features of the archaeological site and included some of the theories on what the site means. You have some good visuals and a map. You followed the citation guidelines for most of your visual and text material. More detail and/or better organization would have made the exhibit even stronger, but museum visitors will learn some interesting things. | Your overall exhibit would have benefited from additional detail and organization. Reviewing grammar, punctuation, and spelling can always help your work. You may have forgotten to fully describe the archaeological site, include a map, or you may have omitted a description of the theories on some of the unsolved mysteries. Review the guidelines for citing material you used in the exhibit. Think about what you might have added to improve the museum visitors' learning experience. |               |
